

A plant cultivated for its fleshy fruits, originating in South Asia but brought to the Mediterranean before 1000CE.

Default orientation: fruit with stems to chief; plant with roots to base.

No proper coloration; purple and white varieties are both common.

Source: Stemmario Trivulziano. Artist unknown. (Arms of Lomeno, page 196.)